Bavaria's new Cruiser 32

Bavaria will introduce a new addition to the market in September 2009: the new Cruiser 32, which will mix up the market in the 32 foot segment.

Bavaria Yachts has made waves since the introduction of the Cruiser 55 earlier this year. The new Bavarias were developed in close collaboration with Farr Yacht Design and BMW DesignworksUSA, a subsidiary of the BMW Group. The boat demonstrates clear lines with innovative design aspects whilst remaining at a level of functionality and safety.

'We are very proud to present our new development and are looking forward to introducing the new cruiser into the market,' says Andres Cardenas, CEO Bavaria Yachts. 'The boat expresses beautiful details with new features and is an evolution from our current Bavaria series, reflecting a higher standard.'

The new sailing boat has been developed by the renowned designer, Farr Yacht Design, just like her sister ship the Cruiser 55. The smallest member of the New Classic family offers an optimized, modern bow with sportive performance as well as a spacious interior concept.

Some of the main features have been taken over from the Cruiser 55 and ensure the new 32 is a dream boat for all who enjoy sailing with the whole family. And as it is with any Bavaria, the value for money is unbeatable. The price for the entry level yachts is expected to be approx $179 000. (subject to exchange rates)

Cruiser 55 in Palma

The new Cruiser 55 was shown off to the world's press in Palma at the Palma International Boat Show in April.

It was received with great acclaim from the world's press. "The Yacht" magazine, one of Europe's leading trade journals, sums up: "The Cruiser 55 presents itself in a discreet form, totally avoiding superficial effects, but nevertheless – or perhaps for this very reason – radiating more class and finesse than any design produced during the last ten to fifteen years."
